CHRONICLE FUNDS

I mentioned in last month's issue that I would let you all know how your donations and others recent sources of income affected the Chronicle's ailing funds.

Well, thanks to your response we are now back in the 'black' and likely to remain so for the coming year. John Whyte and I would like to extend a heartfelt thank you to all of you who responded so generously to our plea for support. Donations were in nearly all cases accompanied with good wishes for the Chronicle and at least five donations were made by people living outside the village who either receive their copy by post or who's copy has been past to them by other readers.

Roger and Janet Biddle ran a very successful plant stall during the 'Village Gardens' open day. Despite the rather indifferent weather they raised a magnificent £106.00 half of which half has been passed to John for our funds.

Having presented the Chronicle accounts for past and current years to the Parish Council, they agreed to support the Chronicle with a payment of £200.00.

Despite my having put the wrong date on the advert publicising the Chronicle disco in last months issue, and two other major events being held close to Aston Abbotts on that night, it was well attended. Lol and Dave spent the afternoon setting up lots of 'technical kit' to produce a great sound system complete with clever lighting effects. Throughout the evening they played a really good selection of music which proved so popular that most of us who were there danced the evening away. Even Neil Chesher danced so it must have been good!!. Lol and Dave managed to create a party atmosphere which continued right until it was time to go home. Very many thanks to Frank for letting us hold the disco at The Bull & Butcher and Lol and Dave for the great music. A good evening; we really must organise another one.

Very much at the last minute we decided to hold a raffle to boost funds even further. I should therefore like to thank all those who responded to the 'arm twisting' and donated prizes; especially Frank who very sportingly gave two (yes two!!!!) bottles of whisky.

With the raffle and entrance money, plus several donations made on the night we made £234.00. However, our good fortune didn't end there because Dave Lewis auctioned a flight for three around the village and this raised a further £50.00. In addition, Vinney has agreed to organise and run a Karcoke evening in the autumn with proceeds going to The Chronicle.

 $P_{\text{utting all this together}}$, the Chronicle funds are currently as follow;-

Previous balance	£ 69.00
Donations	£330.00
Flower Stall	£ 53.00
Parish Council	£200.00
Disco and flight	£304.00
TOTAL	£956.00

Based on our printing and collation costs remaining the same and the hope that the Fete will yield a further donation, we should remain in the black throughout this financial year (up to April 98)

Once again, a very big thank you to all of you who so kindly gave us your support.

CHANGES TO ADVERTISING CHARGES

On reviewing our overall finances it has become clear that advertisements take up about half the space in the Chronicle whilst receipts from advertisers only amount to just over 25% of the our printing costs. in other words we are charging advertisers half of what it cost to publish their adverts. To address this it has been agreed that beginning next year, advertisers will be given the option of paying the same but halving the size of their advert, or leaving their advert the same size but paying double the present rate. A letter explaining this in further detail is to be sent by our treasurer to all advertisers shortly. My policy of not charging our readers or schools etc. for 'one off private' adverts will remain unchanged.

Arthur Doggett

It is with great sadness that we learned of the death in June of Arthur Doggett. He would have been 82 on the 10th of August this year. For a great many he will be remembered as a 'gentleman' in the truest sense of the word and of course a particularly good organist. For many years he played at Wing Church and recently played at services in our own church in Aston Abbotts.

I shall personally miss him since whenever we met; whether around the village or when he occasionally popped into the 'Bull' for a couple of halves, we always got into such interesting conversations. He seemed to be so very enthusiastic about the arts, particularly music, a few years ago it was painting. He was desperate to be able to paint and we would often discuss the fundamentals of the various techniques. More recently, because I struggle to master even elementary keyboard he was helpful in explaining the some of the basics of music theory.

Like me he loved church organ music but unlike me he was very knowledgeable about it and would often explain why certain pieces were played in a particular way as well as the historic background to their having being written. Several of my records were bought after these conversations.

Arthur was no 'stick in the mud' either. Quite a few of us remember the night he played the organ at one of the 'Chronicle Cabarets', ending a recital with Land of Hope and Glory. As I remember, Arthur didn't get away until he had played several encores and it was a night which will be long remembered by us.

He will be sadly missed and our thoughts go out to Minnie and their family at this very sad time.

Ed.

Summer Drama Club at Leighton Buzzard Theatre

Adventures in Theatre is a series of four and five morning workshops during which the participants devise their own play.

Family and friends are invited to attend a performance on the final morning.

The workshops are designed to be fun, exciting and limited only by the participants imagination.

Everyone taking part in the Summer Drama Club will receive a certificate of participation.

Once again we are delighted to welcome professional drama tutor Chris Amos to lead the workshops - but don't leave it too long to book as his workshops always sell out very quickly.

Sweets, ice creams and drinks will be on sale from The Servery in the theatre foyer.

Monday 28th July - Friday 1st August, 9.30am -1pm

RECTOR'S REPORT -JULY & AUGUST 1997

I cannot make up my mind about which is the best alternative.

In the three churches for which I am responsible there are three organs - Cublington has an American organ, Aston has a small Victorian pipe organ and Wingrave has a larger Victorian pipe organ. They all work fairly well - well enough so that we would not normally be thinking of their retirement and replacement with something else.

That may be the problem, because organs are only useful when you have people who can play them and organists are becoming an endangered species.

Church flowers for June.

One solution is to teach many more people to play the organ. That would take time but could be arranged without too much difficulty. The trouble comes in persuading those who have learnt to turn out on Sunday morning (even if on a rota basis).

Another solution is to grasp modern digital technology and have all our music to CD quality at the press of a button. There is something about this that doesn't feel quite right. Modern technology does not come cheaply, and as we know, it changes at an alarming rate so that this year's model is out of date before we have really got to grips with it. Yet it is not just the cost that is off-putting, technically the sound quality may be excellent but somehow there is a feeling that it is not quite the real thing.

It seems only the "human" element that we find difficult - after all, many churches already have modern digital organs instead of pipe organs. These are very far removed from the early electronic organs. As long as there is a real person actually playing, we do not experience the problem. Could we get used to a sound engineer sitting at a bank of switches instead of an organist sitting at a keyboard? After all, the organist is in reality sitting at a bank of switches and skilfully blending different sound sources, and reflecting/matching the feeling/mood of the people who are there.

In former times, many churches had small orchestras to provide their music. Could that we a way forward or maybe we need to have a period when we become music-less, or learn to use our voices without any other accompaniment? Your answer is as good as mine!

A NEW PATH!!

 ${f T}$ he problem with God is that He does take people at their word !.

Seventeen years ago I made Him a promise that I would follow Him and do whatever He asked of me. Well, I was youngish then and enthusiastic. But He decided to hold me to that promise and has done so ever since.

Three years ago I started out, together with three other people, on a new path for our diocese of Oxford. It had been decided to try a new kind of training for a new kind of minister; someone who would only work in one parish or a group of parishes, and be supported in their training by those parishes The training would be both theological and practical and at the end of it the man or woman would be ordained as priest no differently from in the past but only now by a different route.

So, after my ordination on the fifth of October, Aston Abbotts, Cublington and Wingrave will have a curate for the first time for many, many years, and that should be helpful to every one, not least to Bob Willmott.

There have been many changes within the Church of England during the last twenty years or so. Not just the ordination of women to the priesthood, but in the villages too. Once each village had it's own parish priest living in the village. He was very much part of village life, knowing his parishioners well, baptising the children and taking their weddings and funerals. There was something solid and secure about the position of the Church, the language of its services and the way it functioned.

Less so nowadays. There is insufficient money to pay for a priest in every parish. Many villages, like Aston Abbotts, have no resident priest, and this seems unlikely to change. As the full-time clergy presence becomes less the laity will have to become involved more. And that will be a good thing for the Church. But clergy need to be found because there are certain things that only clergy can do, such as baptisms, church weddings, confessions, celebration of the Eucharist. And most people still want clergy to take funerals.

The only drawback,- if it is one, is that the Local Non Stipendary Minister (my official name-to-be) is not expected to be full-time, so there will still be plenty of scope for lay people to take their part in the ministry of the Church to the v village. After all, the church is not a few people who wear a dog collar but all the people together, learning about and living out their Christian faith and so witnessing to others about the love and forgiveness of God. "Christianity was not founded by clergymen." (nor clergy women for that matter).

In October when I am ordained by the Bishop of Oxford I can be sure of one thing: it is not going to be the end of the road; there will be more to come and I will have no idea what it is. God always was a God of surprises and He certainly will not have changed in that.

Siv Tunnicliff

Dear playground committee,

the children of the village need your help.

They desperately need a small piece of the playing field for their ball games etc. i.e. to play netball or basket ball or even play on their roller skates or skateboards. All it needs is either a tarmac or concrete square, big enough for these games to be played on.

When playing in Brickstock, not just with a ball but on their bikes they are often told off.

They don't always want to play football and whilst the swings and slide are fine for the younger children a small surfaced area would enable the older ones to play a wide variety of games in safety.

As an adult I can appreciate people living in Brickstock not wanting these games played around their cars. However, we have all been young and understand that children get fed-up being constantly told off. Surely the provision of a suitable area would not be too difficult to arrange and be beneficial to all concerned.

We would be most grateful if you could look into this for them.

Sharon Wilkinson.

TOTAL PANIC!!.

It was a lovely June morning, sunny, birds chirping and all that sort of stuff. In my usual early morning lethargy I was on the way to pick up the paper from Bernard's, have a crafty look at page three of Percy's Sun before Frank and Bernard, the "postie" and milkman did, and all seemed well with the world. And then I spotted it!! What a shocking sight first thing in the morning? A banner Homes flag mast erected outside the Church Room.

Was this the next building to disappear at 6.00 in the morning before any one could complain? Where were the bulldozers?

Had the workmen failed to wake up from their slumbers in the new caravan park at the 'Bull'? Were they, even as I gazed on at this dreadful and afflicting sight knocking at Doris's door for the key?

But no!! It was non of these. With tremendous relief I then spotted the heap of empty lager tins and realised the phantom mast 'nicker' had struck again.

Wingrave School News

Speech Competition

During the summer term all the children in the middle school have taken part in this competition. They are asked to give a well presented and interesting three minute speech on any subject of their choice. Subjects vary from Florida to Wild Dogs, Bermuda Triangle to Pigs or Pancakes to Motorbikes. Each class puts forward two members to go forward into the finals. The final speeches are given to the whole middle school and three adult judges. In joint third place this year were Danielle Austin and Laura Blake. In second place was Jack Puddifoot and the winner was Nicky Wyatt with a very popular speech entitled 'What I Would Do If I Was Prime Minister' - Tony watch out!

Verulamium

As part of their work on the Romans, class 4 visited the Verulamium at St. Albans. The following extract is from an account by Sarah Smith.

'First we went to the hypocaust. The hypocaust was a Roman way of central heating. The house is supported on pillars. You light a fire underneath theseand then the warm air flows through special chambers in the floor and walls. I saw some huge mosaics that would have covered their floors. We saw a Roman coffin with a skeleton inside it. They had worked out from his skull what he would have looked like. I learnt that a delicacy in eating was roasted ostrich.'

101% is the name of the newspaper produced by class 6. The first edition, which has been circulating around the school, contains articles on the national election, the school election, sport, cooking, visits, jokes etc. The pupils will be looking forward to the next edition.

School Election

Following the excitement of the recent general election, class 6 decided to hold their own school election. The pupils in the class had a chance to write a manifesto and read it out to the class. After ideas were given to the class everyone voted. The candidates elected were myself, Ben Wyatt and Colin Antosiewicz. We are now busy preparing our manifestos and campaigning for votes. Examples of ideas are the introduction of bicycle racks and recyling bins around the school. The candidate with the most votes will have the chance to put forward their ideas to the school governors. 1st Wingrave Guides.

All twenty nine members of Wingrave Guides took part in the weekend camp on the Cliveden estate. As they began to pitch the tents the rain started but thanks to the expertise of the girls the camp was set up within minutes. The camp was good fun and very popular.

We would like to make a plea on behalf of the guides. For our camps and patrol cooking. We are in need of the following:

large cooking pans/pots, large frying pans, large plastic mixing bowls smaller saucepans and frying pans for patrol cooking metal grids e.g. from an old barbecue or oven.

Although we shall be fundraising for a second patrol tent, we still need the modern framed tents for kichen, stores, shelter and first aid.

I f any one has any of the above which are no longer required please contact one of us, or drop them round. We can be contacted as follows;-

THOUGHTS ON THE DISPLACEMENT, OVERNIGHT, OF LARGE WHITE OBJECTS FROM THE GENERAL AREA OF NASH'S FARM

At Nash's Farm did Banner Homes a new development decree, Of barn conversions (so they said), and brand new homes for you and me.

At dawn one day the barns came down; men began to dig holes. Oddly, out of nowhere appeared two monstrous, priapic poles.

Flags fluttered; these ludicrous sticks towered over neighbouring houses. Dark passions welled up - of a black kind only such crassness arouses

Grown men mumbled into their beer. Plots hatched. Then one glorious dawn The sun awoke, the blackbirds cheeped, there were those ghastly poles - gawnl

People moved in. We wish them well. We hope to welcome them further -To our pubs - we need two - which are goodfer what good pubs are goodfer,

Or that other place of worship, the church, go there and pray Or join the Ramblers. use the shop, enjoy your summer fete day.

But back to Banner - not done yet. Still have houses to build. Tho' still not sure what land they own or how the plot can be filled.

We're not out the wood yet. Not free, just on parole. To tell us one day they'd be back, they left us two bloody new poles.

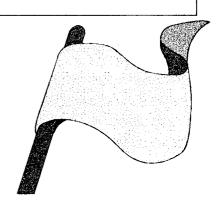

Damn the things! Melt them all down! . It was the might of thirteen June When those oversized twigs were brought low, by the light of a silvery moon.

A word to Banner; when you go, to show other people your tricks, Take down your fence!

> Clear up your mess! And don't leave behind any sticks!

Millinium Grant Offers

The 21st Century Halls for England Fund has just announced it's first round grant offers totalling almost £2 million. The programme is funded by a £10 million award from the Millennium Commission to ACRE (Action with Communities in Rural England).

A total of 33 halls in 22 counties throughout England have now received conditional offers of a grant, to be ratified by the Millennium Commission, towards renovation, extending or building a new village hall. The grants will provide between 6% and 50% of the total project cost with the remainder raised by local fund raising, other grants, donations and voluntary labour. The first Bucks winner (of a conditional grant) is Forty Green (£100,000 for a new hall).

Bob Bradshaw, Programme Manager, commented: "We would welcome more applications for refurbishment and extension schemes. In order to achieve a spread of projects, as required by our contract. We are particularly interested in smaller projects and larger ones seeking a small percentage of grant from our Fund." He went on to add: "Rural Community Councils in each county can give guidance on a range of issues including the necessary partnership funding, and the sort of features that might be included to meet the Programme's criteria."

The amount of grant applied for and offered varies widely The smallest amounts to some £7,900 and the largest £125,000 although only two of the grants were over £91,000. The average grant is £45,000.

The projects selected are a mixture of renovation, extensions and new buildings All intended to provide access and facilities for less able bodied people, including features to assist movement within the building and devices to assist the partially sighted and those hard of hearing. They also generally feature energy efficiency measures including high levels of insulation and energy saving devices. Many have included provision for computers and information technology, either as part of this scheme or in plans for future expansion.

Four of the halls were selected as Flagship Halls in recognition of their exemplary designs, often within the constraints of relatively low budgets. These were identified as forward-looking projects featuring innovative solutions to the problems and issues likely to be encountered by communities into the next millennium. The third round of applications is scheduled to begin in autumn 1997.

Recycling Plan for Mobile Phones

A mobile phone recycling project has been launched by BT and the Association of European Telecommunications and Professional Electronics Industry (ECTEL).

The scheme involves manufacturers offering to take back and recycle items once consumers have finished with them.

Richard Page, the minister with responsibly for the environment in the Department of Trade and Industry (at the time of the launch), said: "Technological development has made the mobile phone a disposable product. As such, I suspect that once a mobile phone has reached the end of its life, many consumers just throw it away or leave it to collect dust. Many Governments are considering the issue of waste electronic equipment, and the case for legislation. My message is that there is an opportunity now for industry to contribute positively and ensure that we achieve the best solutions."

A number of findings should result from the ECTEL/BT project. We need to establish how much electronic equipment is going into the waste stream and the extent of its potential environmental impact. We must also define the equipment to be considered and decide which categories should be earmarked as priorities for recovery."

A mother and small daughter were on the beach, and the child saw two other children in the distance, paddling. She asked her mother if she could go and play with them by the sea, and her mother said "Yes" When she returned, her mother asked "Were they boys or girls", to which the little girl replied, "I don't know, they didn't have any clothes on".
